For Immediate ReleaseLocal photographer featured in Cleveland Hopkins International Airport art collection

North Canton, OH: Two images by North Canton photographer, Shawn Wood of Studio 7 Photographic Illustration, have been selected to be put on permanent display in the Cleveland Hopkins International Airport's art collection. The addition of Mr. Wood's work aligns with the Airport's 80th Anniversary Celebration event on Wednesday, July 27, 2005. The images, titled, "The new Rock and Roll Hall of Fame, 1995" and "The new Browns first touch down, 1999" depict moments in the city's rich history.

In addition to the Airport collection, Wood's work has also hung at the Cleveland Museum of Art, as well the Massillon Art Museum. The photographer has won numerous awards for photographic excellence. Since 1985, Studio 7 has focused on creating dynamic images for local, regional and national companies, advertising agencies and publications. In addition, Mr. Wood is also the official photographer for the Pro Football Hall of Fame Enshrinement.

For the past 80 years Cleveland Hopkins International Airport has quietly served as the front door to Cleveland. It has an impressive history in the field of aviation and is one of the city's oldest and most understated landmarks. Over the years it has grown to become a major catalyst and lynchpin to Cleveland's economic development. It provides 10,000 jobs to Northeast Ohio employees and is responsible for billions in local economic impact.
